The matching exercise consists of five empty, rounded rectangular boxes and five photographs of different transportation modes. Arrows point from each box to a specific image:

- The top-left box points to a blue and white monorail train on an elevated guideway.
- The top-center box points to a modern, silver tram or light rail vehicle on a city street.
- The top-right box points to a blue and white train moving through a tunnel.
- The bottom-left box points to a blue and white train stopped at a platform.
- The bottom-right box points to a blue and white train moving through a tunnel.
